

HP for Education

Take part in Group Buying to get even better prices on classroom IT.

HP Group Buying is an innovative way to procure your HP devices. Take advantage of this new way to receive a volume based cashback rebate based on the cumulative purchases of all participating schools and educational establishments.

The HP Group Buying offer applies to Microsoft “Shape the Future” devices which include discounted Windows licenses. As a qualifying educational establishment, you need to register with Microsoft to establish your eligibility to purchase these products.

How does Group Buying Work?

As more schools or educational establishments participate in group buying of a qualifying product, and volume thresholds are reached, your school or establishment, together with all of other participating establishments benefit from the volume rebate.

The rebate reward is transferred to your school's HP for Education wallet.

How do I take advantage of Group Buying?

Details of qualifying products are published on the HP for Education website.

Visit the website to register your Group Buying purchases.

When the purchases of the entire group reach the required level, your school or establishment will receive your cashback rebate.

Is my school eligible to take part in Group Buying?

Your school or educational establishment must be at Expert level to take part in Group Buying offers.

You also need to register with Microsoft to establish your eligibility as a school or educational establishment in the UK to take advantage of the offer.
